EDINBURGH, 31 AUG 1910

Doing what I could to participate in the contemporary revival of the classical music of the Highland bagpipe, I published some two years ago, a volume of my original compositions entitled "The Royal Collection of Piobaireachd" consisting of six tunes, three of which have full and separate piano settings. The volume bears this title because it contains a Salute which was graciously accepted by His late Majesty King Edward VII.

In view of the generous reception which was accorded to the volume by the public and the Press, I now feel encouraged to prepare a second and final ^{Edition} ~~part~~ which will contain ¹² ~~ten~~ additional tunes. A new feature of this ^{Edition} ~~part~~ will be that the Preface and Introduction will both appear in Gaelic as well as the English translation. As a special offer to subscribers only the price of the complete book in ^{one} ~~two~~ volumes containing ^{eighteen} ~~sixteen~~ original tunes will be 2/6 and the list of subscribers will be included in the book. Should you wish your name to appear in the subscribers list please notify me at your earliest convenience enclosing P. O. for 2/6 with 4d. extra for postage. After the book is published the price will be considerably raised.

H. R. H. The Duke of Connaught has been pleased to head the subscribers list.

When published the book may be had direct from me or from my agent, Mr. Peter Henderson, Bagpipe Maker, 24 Renfrew Street, Glasgow.
